

FOUND HIS RIVAL IN WIFE'S ROOM

Device Got Busy and Intruder
Went to the Hospital in a Badly Battered Condition.

HUSBAND IS ARRESTED.

Held in $1,000 Bail, Volunteers
Come Forward to Give Bond
for Him—Got Tipt in Letter.

Taking a tip contained in an anonymous letter, Albert Berne, a young engineer, employed by the Bulfinch Electric Company, left his work three hours before the usual time to-day and went to his home at No. 1486 Third avenue. He had kissed his wife and two little children good by a short time before and hoped to find them alone upon his return.

He had difficulty in getting in the door. There was considerable scuffling around inside the flat, and when Berne gained entrance he found a man in his wife's room.

He knew the man. Months ago Berne was compelled to move from another place in Harlem to escape the attentions paid to his lovely wife by Peter Della, of No. 149 East One Hundred and Nineteenth street. It was Della who confronted him when he broke into his own home.

Although Della is twice the size and weight of Berne he was nowhere in the fight that followed. When police, summoned by the neighbors of the woman, reached the place they found Della suffering from a complete fracture of the femur, broken ribs, internal injuries, scalp wounds and a severe case of heart disease. It is supposed he accumulated this last ailment while Della was pounding on the door.

The injured man was taken to Presbyterian Hospital, and Berne was locked up. In Harlem Police Court to-day he was held for trial in $1,000 bail. Police and court attendants treated him with the greatest consideration and volunteer bondsmen were soon on hand.

RICH MAN BURIED UNDER PEA COAL

Tons of Shifting Anthracite
Piled for Seven Feet Over
William Nungesser.

William Nungesser, of No. 23 Jordan street, one of the wealthiest coal dealers in Brooklyn, to-day was standing on the top of a pile of pea coal at his big yard in Third street. He was fifty feet above the ground when his feet slipped and he was plunged into a mass of fine, shifting pea coal. The anthracite gave way beneath him like quicksand and with a scream for help the millionaire sank from sight under the heap.

Engineer Alexander, of the hoisting engine, heard the cry. He called for all hands to drop work and rush to the rescue. The men laid planks across the surface of the coal to avoid plunging in after Nungesser, and then began digging in the mass for their quarry. At a depth of seven feet below the surface they found Nungesser, unconscious.

They were able to tie a rope around his arm, but, having no hoisting pulley in position, could not get Nungesser out. They opened the chutes and let the pea coal out of the pocket. The heavy load came crashing down to the street, where it was witnessed. An examination showed he was suffering from nothing but shock.

WEALTHY CUBAN SENT TO JAIL

Also Held for Grand Jury on Charge of Atrocious Assault.

Manuel Rodriguez, said to be a "remittance man" receiving an annual allowance of $5,000 from wealthy parents to remain away from Cuba, was sentenced to-day by Recorder Stanton, of Hoboken, to thirty days in the penitentiary. In addition to the sentence the Recorder held the Cuban in $1,000 to the Grand Jury on the charge of atrocious assault and battery on an officer.

Rodriguez lives in Broomfield, N. J., and commuted each day on the Lackawanna. The Hoboken police say he went to New York to speculate either on stocks or horses.

Usually, they say, he returns from New York so burdened by packages that the railway attaches lead him on a package train or invalid's car to take him from the ferry to the train. Wednesday afternoon, however, Rodriguez Scott, of the Lackawanna, tried to assist Rodriguez, when he became violent, "gave the knee" to Scott, injuring him permanently, according to City Physician A. J. F. Smith.

Rodriguez made a plea for a fine, saying that the Cuban came of a highly connected family. To this Recorder Stanton replied that it was more reason why he should be punished.

In addition to the possible indictment by the Grand Jury, Scott will bring civil suit for damages.

ACCIDENTAL DEATHS BY GAS-AROUSE CORONER.

Harburger Would Compel Gas
Companies to Place Turn Cocks
Six Inches Apart.

Two deaths by asphyxiation reported to-day have aroused Coroner Julius Harburger to announce his intention of having a bill introduced in the Legislature compelling the gas companies to place the gas jet turncocks at least six inches apart. Many deaths this winter have resulted from persons turning on the heater thumbcocks for the lighter, and then falling to get any light at the light jet, resulting in fatal asphyxiation.

Harburger, forty-five years old, whose cards give his address as Windsor, Vt., was to-day found dead from gas asphyxiation in a room at the Chelsea Square Hotel, No. 10 West Twenty-third street. At midnight he came into the hotel building, and he had been assaulted and robbed. He was helped to bed, where he was found dead to-day. Both Harburger and heater jets were on.

William Leary, nineteen years old, an elevator boy who rented a room at No. 67 Sixth avenue, was found dead in bed to-day with both jets on. No cause was ascertained by the coroner. Coroner Harburger ordered autopsies in both cases.

BROTHER OF ALLEGED HIGHWAYMAN FINED.

Made a Disturbance in Court Asserting Innocence of Arrested Man.

William Connors, of No. 102 Nassau street, Brooklyn, and Henry Gallagher, of No. 125 Twenty-third street, were held in $2,000 bail each by Magistrate Gelsman in the Butler Street Court to-day, charged with holding up and robbing James Kleinh, of Fortenth street and Third avenue, in front of his home last night.

Kleinh said that the two men jumped on him, got him down and stole his watch and $40. Policemen Christensen heard his cries and secured the footpads before they could escape.

When arraigned in court the prisoners declared their innocence and accused Gallagher of attempting to rob them. Michael Connors, of No. 6 Henry street, brother of one of the highwaymen, made such a disturbance in the tribunal by asserting his kinship to the innocent and threatening the Magistrate that he was fined $10 and locked up.

50 FEET OF WIRE PUT IN HIS HEART

Amazing Operation for Aneurism Performed on Philadelphia Man.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1.—At the Moore-Thurgood Hospital, yesterday Prof. Mann and Ashmun led fifty feet of fine silver thread or wire into an aneurism of the heart of Frederick Williams, a barber.

An aneurism is formed by a blood vessel of the heart dilating. It grows until the tissue stretch and then the wall of the chest, when it bursts, causing instant death.

The aneurism was pricked, and as the silver wire was fed into the opening through a needle it was coiled around inside so as to form a framework on when the blood could coagulate. It is hoped that the clot thus formed will grow into a new tissue and form a wall so that when the aneurism bursts the aorta will remain intact. The surgeon was a success.
